The Berry Cline Case

DENVER Col, November 23 —John H. Jackson, the uncle of A D Jackson, was to day arrested as accessory to the murder of the Ute Johnson The charge was made by Bradshaw, Commissioner Meacham's clerk. The preliminary trial will probably be had to morrow

The Berry case was on motion of United States Attorney Johnson postponed until April twenty seventh, to enable the prosecution to get all their witnesses and evidence in shape The argument of counsel on motion was very spirited T M Patterson and B M Hughes, appeared for the defense, and United States Attorney Johnson and Mr Simmons of Gunnison, for the prosecution Mr. Patterson criticised Governor Pitkin for his action as having appeared as a public prosecutor and asserted that he was nothing more than a private individual He also eulogized the action of Berry, Hoyt and Meacham which he pronounced humane be rate and sensible, and said that they saved us from a Ute war

Tyng on Miracles

NEW YORK November 23 —Rev Dr Tyng the well known Evangelist clergyman, of the Episcopal church, preached a sermon Sunday evening which attracts much attention in lead[illegible] literary and religious circles Speaking of the reported miracles at Lourdes France, he said No one dares attempt to deny that multitudes of cures took place there—the lame walked the deaf heard, the blind saw It will never do in this generation to deny this authenticated fact

The doctor related what he himself had seen [illegible] evidence of the genuineness of the [illegible] which he declared were the effect of [illegible] unquestioning faith "Call the Romish [illegible] what you will," said he "a half truth, [illegible] overladen with error, here nevertheless, are the facts The Roman Catholic church is [illegible] above all other societies of believers I do [illegible] my heart to impugn their motives, [illegible] my jury impatience I am striving to same results

Concerning the Chinese Treaty

[illegible] November 23 [illegible] secretary [illegible] now [illegible] sent [illegible] gave the genera[illegible] [illegible] to have been re[illegible] to the state department He says the [illegible] has not [illegible] any informa[illegible] [illegible] the purport of the treaty which has been signed in the hands of cor[illegible] [illegible] of course it may [illegible] in accordance with [illegible] instructions An other statement [illegible] to be telegraphed from Washington [illegible] of the treaty [illegible] [illegible] of the state [illegible] [illegible] to be formerly [illegible]

Postmaster General's Report

WASHINGTON November 23 [illegible] The annual report of [illegible] the operation [illegible] which has already been [illegible] of his subordinates [illegible] to the statement of [illegible] Postmaster General Brady respecting [illegible] service transportation and last year [illegible] worthy careful consideration [illegible] to have reduced the postal service to the meagre appropriation for 79 would be entirely inadequate to the wants of the people He has carefully reviewed the estimates of General Brady for the next fiscal year's mail transportation in all its branches and approves all of them in accordance with the proposed requirements of the service

The appropriation [illegible] recommended for the continuance of special mail facilities on railroads, such as extra trains with mails only and the acceleration of regular trains carrying mails, etc, which the people have enjoyed for several years past It is not doubted that regular and frequent mail steamship communication with Mexican Central American, South American and trans Pacific ports would prove important auxiliaries to American commerce

He says I think it would be a wise measure of public policy to encourage by appropriate legislation the establishment by our own citizens of American lines of steamers to such of said ports as will in the judgment of congress promote our commercial interests I think it would be a wise measure to amend the general law on the subject so as to authorize the payment by the postmaster general of a just and reasonable compensation within a prescribed maximum limit and commensurate with the importance of the service performed to such lines of American steamers as may be employed under contract with the department in transporting mails to Mexican, Central American, South American and trans Pacific ports.

The money order system continues to grow in popular favor The superintendent of the money order system suggests a plan for the reduction of fees which seems entirely feasible and which is recommended to the attention of congress His plan is to reduce the fee for money orders not exceeding five dollars to five cents and to extend the maximum limit of an order from fifty dollars to one hundred dollars so that the increase in commissions received for large orders may offset the loss resulting from the reduced fee from small orders The foreign money order business and letter system is in a highly satisfactory condition

He thinks dutiable goods coming through the mails from abroad should be more numerous instead of more restricted, and should embrace all mail matter He strongly commends the plan of establishing a postal savings system like that of Great Britain and Canada, where it is successful, and is a source of actual profit to the country It would be even more advantageous here It would require but little more work and be a great boon to the people He had, while abroad examined the postal telegraph system It has been perfected, extended and cheapened largely since taken from private hands, and yields profit to the royal treasury Is it not time to question whether this system should not be taken from private corporations whose managers seek only personal gain and not to convenience the public

He unhesitatingly endorses Key's war on lotteries, and recommends decisive legislation against them so far as the use of the mails is concerned in accordance with supreme court decision He also urges legislation to deprive of the benefits of the mails those newspapers which publish lottery advertisements.

Corean Good Will

WASHINGTON, November 23, —It is stated that Secretary Thompson, in his forthcoming annual report will express the opinion that Commodore Shufeldt's mission to Corea may yet produce important results He has succeeded in removing most of nearly all the irritation caused by the trouble when the Shenandoah was there some years ago Efforts will be continued to have the ports of that country opened to the world The Coreans already buy many American goods preferring them to European and obtaining them through Japan

Protesting Against the Passion Play

NEW YORK November 23 —The board of aldermen adopted a [illegible] unanimously condemning the production of the [illegible] Play, and calling on the corporation counsel for an opinion whether the [illegible] whether [illegible] prevent [illegible] whether the council [illegible] prohibiting the play [illegible] [illegible] the case [illegible] resolution

Naval Courtesies

NEW YORK [illegible] officers of the navy [illegible] indignant because [illegible] American band [illegible] Birmingham [illegible] off Cape Henry some time ago and which the courtesy of the retary of the navy was allowed to come into the dockyard to repair, took occasion to launch the first [illegible] on the American navy, its officers and the flag Commodore Huguenin [illegible] this fact [illegible] once and that [illegible] were received from the secretary of the navy

From the Queen to the President

WASHINGTON November 23 —A large box received and unpacked at the white house to day was found to contain a massive desk and writing table a present from Queen Victoria to the president of the United States The desk is made of live oak and weighs 1 300 pounds It is elaborately carved and altogether presents a magnificent specimen of workmanship It is made of the timbers of the Arctic exploring ship Resolute and the inscription concludes "Presented by the Queen of Great Britain and Ireland to the President of the United States, as a memorial of the courtesy and kindness which dictated the offer of the gift of the Resolute

Cold Weather Bulls the Market

NEW YORK, November 23 —The Commercial Bulletin says the weather is playing into the hands of the bulls on the stock exchange, produce exchange and cotton exchange The sudden freezing up of the state canals catching some 10,000,000 bushels of grain of all kinds in the ice caused wheat to advance from $1 24⅜ to $1 28⅛ Dispatches from Buffalo say the ice is three inches thick and boatmen accept the closing as final for the season. Accounts from Syracuse however indicate a hope of the opening of the canal for some distance upwards as an ice boat has been sent to break up the ice. At the worst some six million bushels will be virtually erased from the visible supply until May next but with the enormous stock in the interior and the still large visible supply remaining after this deduction the effect of this surprise upon the prices can hardly be expected to prove very permanent

Railroad Earnings

The earnings of the Denver & Rio Grande increased $50,000 the third week in November

The North Western people say their earnings for the first five months of the fiscal year have netted seven per cent clear of all expenses and without charges upon common and preferred stock

The Chicago and Alton and other roads show earnings in like proportion.

Sharp Tactics

CHICAGO November 23, —The Inter Ocean says Should the democratic programme of keeping out of his seat by a long winded contest the successor to Garfield in the senate, the republicans can promptly retaliate in the case of Jas G Fair, the bonanza millionaire, who lives in San Francisco, and notoriously procured his election to the senate from Nevada by purchase Legislative objection can properly be made to his being seated on the ground that his election was procured by bribery His case is one that would require fully as much debate before its settlement as could that of Garfield's successor and so the plot to deprive the republican side of one vote in the senate while the debate was continued in the Ohio case would be baulked by the exclusion brought the same [illegible] of Fair

Slavery in Alaska

CHICAGO November 23 —The Inter Ocean's special says the suggestion is delicately given out at Washington that it might be well for the government to get rid of Alaska by leasing it to the Commercial company It might be as well for the government now to restore slavery under such a guise in the seal fur isles That is what has practically been done [illegible] Considerable Moles are permitted [illegible] sell what they have [illegible] company and [illegible] buy what they want from the company [illegible] the [illegible] they were under the slave [illegible] the Alaska territory [illegible] merely [illegible] that [illegible] full sale of all

CENSUS IN SOUTH CAROLINA

The reason for the second investigation into the South Carolina census is not to satisfy General Walker, President Hayes or Secretary Schurz, all of whom accept the figures as final and correct, but to satisfy the country at large and make, if possible a redistricting If there was no reliance in the reliability of the census, there would be bitterness, suspicion and inflammatory speeches in congress and great difficulty in getting any redistricting General Walker intends that his work shall be the standard in every case and be accepted

F W STEELE,
Manager of the Gazette

The Boston Herald suggests the name of Senator Hoar for the Berlin mission

If Mr Sherman is not to be retained in the cabinet the country would be pleased to see Hon Levi P Morton occupy that position

Even W H English of Indiana, was not mean enough to circulate the plates of the Morey letter which Barnum and Hewitt sent to him

The Louisville Courier Journal suggests that John Kelly's distinguished services in aiding the election of Garfield should be rewarded by making him minister to Ireland

The race between Foster and Sherman for senatorship is growing quite bitter The chances are all in favor of the success of Sherman who is universally considered the best man for the place

The Denver Tribune suggests Judge Hallett for the supreme bench He might be more useful on the national bench, as his local prejudices would there be less Judge Wells would be fully as useful a man

In 1877 Garfield thought Hayes interference in the election of Stanley Matthews, to serve the rest of Sherman's term in the senate, was unwarranted. Hence he is not likely to interfere in the present struggle between Foster and Sherman

Sir Alexander Cockburn, who died Saturday, was born in 1802, and therefore 78 years of age In 1847 he began his political career by an election to parliament In 1859 he became lord chief justice of the court of the queen's bench He was arbiter in the Geneva commission in 1871–72 which was organized to settle Alabama claims His conduct on this commission was bitterly denounced by one of our counsel, Caleb Cushing

Mr Z L White, editor of the Providence Star, commenting on the effort to count out Mackey in the Charleston (S C) district, gives some interesting reminiscences of his trip to the same district in 1878 to find out about the frauds in the election of that year He gives the following story 'Concealing our business we went into the remote portions of Col Mackey's district and traveled about in the little towns for several weeks, lounging about the hotels and bar rooms in the company of the local democratic leaders Many of them were entirely thrown off their guard and not only admitted the gigantic frauds and explained to us how they were perpetrated but stoutly defended them on the ground of necessity

COLORADO AND THE CABINET

Colorado papers are urging the appointment of one of our citizens to a cabinet position So far as preferences have been expressed they have been expressed in favor of ex-Governor Routt The only reason given why this honor should be conferred on ex Governor Routt is that he successfully conducted the past campaign Now that the campaign is over it may be allowable to speak somewhat frankly It is well known and generally admitted that the republican victory in Colorado was not due to the efficiency of the state committee but rather in spite of its inefficiency and we may add that such efficiency as the state committee had was not due to the chairman Governor Routt demonstrated that he had neither executive or organizing ability Just before the campaign was over many shrewd republican leaders were frightened as to the result because of the loose organization in the party We do not say this to question Governor Routt's loyalty or intimate that he did not do the best he could We believe he did He would do well to run a county committee but he showed himself singularly unable to fill the greater position To urge him for postmaster general seems very impolitic and his occupancy of that position would reflect no credit on the state If the people of Colorado wish to demand a cabinet [illegible] advocate a man not only honest [illegible] well of the party but one who can perform the great duties to which he may be called with credit to the state and advantage to the entire country Few republican leaders in Colorado would honestly say that Governor Routt is such a man We have such men however as Senator Teller or Judge Wells for attorney general Senator Hill for secretary of the interior and many others

If Colorado is to have a cabinet position [illegible] to mining titles land titles, and the Indians It is the one department in which should be filled by a man acquainted with mines and mining the Indian question and the preemption and homestead laws in their practical operations To fill this position Colorado has a first class man in Senator Hill He has been in the state 14 years and fully knows its needs and resources He is a man of great executive ability strong common sense and wide information He would be an honor to the state in this position

SPIRIT OF THE SOLID SOUTH

What Its Newspapers Say

And now suppose the south as is inevitable remains solidly opposed to republicanism what under the sun will the north do about it We hope and trust for the sake of peace and good order that the stalwarts won't say we are naughty We will submit to Garfield's election but opprobrious language we will not stand —Atlanta Constitution,

Henceforth, it is probable, things will ripen for a split in the solid south and the solid north and it is to be hoped that in new alignments on live issue the bloody shirt will be buried with all the old paraphernalia of sectional politics, and that the south and the whole country will realize the benefit of healthy divisions and rational and reputable combinations —Galveston News.

The LaGrange (Ga) Reporter says Solid south Solid north Played out New deal For our part however we believe that the day of disaster is the day for reorganization and we call on the patriotic men who followed the Hancock colors to stand their ground and hold together Norfolk Landmark

The suthern people sensible of their unfortunate condition at best have exhausted their ingenuity to imagine some way by which they could use their political influence without injury to themselves Many have suggested that they should take no part in national elections but this would be represented as disloyalty That they should run blank electoral tickets pledged to no man this would be considered still more offensive That they should kill the republican party by voting with it this would sacrifice conscience and conviction There is no better way than to stand by the party nearest in harmony with us and wait patiently for results to work out —[Macon (Ga) Telegraph

There are two Garfields One of them could receive almost every conservative vote in 'the south' to day if he were a presidential candidate. This we hope, is the real Garfield—the one we are to have for a president from 1881 to 1885 The other is a man who has sacrificed to party the splendid abilities and noble impulses which belonged to the whole country One of these will be president for the next four years Petersburg Index Appeal

The course of business will go on without a jar the dark apprehensions of the extreme democrats will be gradually dissipated it will be soon discovered that, apart from a sentiment of pride and some selfish disappointment the sun of prosperity will shine as brightly upon the people at large with a republican at the helm of the government as it would if a democrat had succeeded in gaining that elevated position The lesson of the hour points to the cultivation of a national spirit both in politics and commerce and a strict attention to those material lines of improvement which will secure popular worth and its natural concomitants Houston (Texas) Post

To the prosperity of the country the democratic party owes its defeat People everywhere were opposed to a change and the result is that our candidates have been 'snowed under' in the two states New York and Indiana which were indispensable to success Had times continued dull the republicans would probably have suffered an even more disastrous rout As it is no good democrat will repine at the fortune of war We have fought a gallant fight but we have been beaten and we should at once accept the result with philosophy and accord to the new administration the recognition due the representatives of an unequivocal majority of the American people That the result is decisive and indisputable is a matter for sincere congratulation on the part of all good citizens A close or doubtful election would have precipitated upon us all the bitter animosities and ugly passions which came so near producing fatal results in 1876 [illegible] the election of General [illegible] that the entire country will accept it [illegible] and business will settle down without delay [illegible] —Baltimore Gazette

The reason which led the country to this decision have been discussed But the fact seems to be that the controlling [illegible] was a distrust in the north and west of the democratic party [illegible] which found its [illegible] that the democracy [illegible] Where for example [illegible] the republic [illegible] free [illegible] democracy [illegible] party [illegible] look the facts [illegible] Telegraph

There is [illegible] the [illegible] so far as [illegible] democratic [illegible] west [illegible] taken [illegible] the democratic party [illegible] —[Hawkinsville (Ga) Dispatch

MAUD S

What Mr W. H Vanderbilt, Her Owner, Has [illegible] to Say About Her.

The following extracts are made from an interview in the [illegible] of the Times.

Reporter—It has been stated that, while abroad, you [illegible] St. Julien had beaten at Hartford [illegible] record of his, 2:11 [illegible] until a long time after the event.

Mr. V.—That is the fact. I had not expected before I went to Europe that the mare would trot as fast as [illegible] this year, and would have been satisfied with 2:16. When I heard of her trotting in 2:11¾ at Chicago I was surprised and delighted, and believed that I owned a wonder. It was the understanding that she should not go farther east than Rochester, and with her performance at the latter city I was fully satisfied. The engagements at Springfield and Hartford were made without consultation with me. When I heard of her performance at Springfield, I telegraphed Colonel Stone to take her off the track until her record was beaten, and, after resting her, to prepare her for me to drive on the road. As I received no telegram on the day that St. Julien trotted at Hartford, I took it for granted that he had not beaten the record, and did not learn that he had made 2:11¼ until I received a New York Herald some twelve days later. It was a great surprise to me, and I at once telegraphed Captain Stone about these words: "I see that St. Julien has beaten Maud's time. Am amazed that you did not telegraph me. Go somewhere and beat it if you can." Captain Stone explained, by letter, that he did not see St. Julien trot at Hartford—heard the news himself at Buffalo—and supposed that fifty people would telegraph it to me. That was natural enough, but no person did telegraph it.

Rep. It was in pursuance of that cablegram that the mare went to Chicago.

Mr. V.—Yes. It was received in Cincinnati on Saturday. The mare had been let up from her work, but was started for Chicago on the following Monday, arrived there on Tuesday, and on Thursday of the next week, with only nine days' preparation, she trotted in 2:11 2-5—2:11¼, as it was announced. Two days later she made her other trial, when she trotted a full mile in 2:10¾, and the middle half mile in 1:02.

Rep.—How fast do you think Maud S will ultimately trot?

Mr. V.—I believe she will trot in 2:06. It is only a question of when she can carry her speed for the full distance, and if nothing goes wrong with her I expect her to be able to trot next year in 2:08.

Rep.—She is in the same hands for this winter?

Mr. V.—Yes; it was intended that she should be shipped to New York, but she had a slight touch of epizootic at the time. Captain Stone came on to see me and I concluded to leave her where she is. Next season she will be exhibited, and after she has lowered the record as far as she can I shall take her for my own use.

Rep.—Would you allow her to be matched against St. Julien?

Mr. V.—Maud S will not, under ordinary circumstances be matched against St. Julien or any other horse while she belongs to me. It will always give me pleasure to show her to the public when, in my judgment, there is good reason for so doing. And before she is withdrawn from the track I think there will be no difference of opinion as to her speed as compared with any present rival. Of course, this opinion is based entirely upon what I hear from Captain Stone, Mr. Bair and those who have seen her performances. She has made but six exhibitions of speed, and it can be truly said each time eclipsing the previous performance. Captain Stone informs me that she has never been driven to her best at the finish of any mile, and I have not conversed with any persons, who have seen her trot in these exhibitions, that do not confirm this statement.

ROMAIN LE GOFF

A French Hero Whose Name is to be Kept Green

"One of the [illegible] streets [illegible] Rue Romain le Goff," says a [illegible] of the [illegible]. "Who was Romain le Goff? A [illegible] student, who lost his life in trying to [illegible] a soldier from the jaws of death. He died when less than twenty. [illegible] circumstances under which [illegible] short and promising [illegible] were [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] honorable and [illegible] the eighteenth century [illegible] school [illegible] the inspectors of [illegible] [illegible] his patience [illegible] retire [illegible] was his [illegible] which drove [illegible] this [illegible] when [illegible] general to the [illegible] and Telegraph Department. He there saw much [illegible] as he did not [illegible] was a [illegible] A paper he [illegible] was unpaired, and serious pecuniary losses thereby entailed on him.

[illegible] defence. There on a Tuesday morning [illegible] a surgeon appeared at the [illegible] he ordered [illegible] years. [illegible] the operation [illegible] performed [illegible] was less [illegible] [illegible] go to another hospital for an early morning [illegible] young people [illegible] refused [illegible] the student with [illegible] protested against an attempt to force the last Sacraments upon a soldier who wanted to die without them, and when Romain le Goff pressed her told him he had no orders from the surgeon, who had by this time left the hospital. Young le Goff, bloodless, without a greatcoat, without nutriment or stimulant to enable him to resist the cold, went on foot over the snow to a hospital at the other end of the town. He was seized with a violent inflammation of the pericardium and for six-and-twenty days was on the verge of the grave. His sister devoted herself to him. He got over the accidental malady to fall into a consumption, and Mlle. le Goff died a few weeks after he was out of immediate danger, of inflammation of the lungs. Romain lingered for a few years. General Chanzy attached him to the military service to enable him to winter in Algeria, where he expired last May. The Municipal Council, in giving this youth's name to the street, wishes to perpetuate the memory of his generous action in the Val de Grace Hospital. I well knew the deceased student and am intimately acquainted with his family. Prosperity has returned to the father and mother, but the children on whom they set their hearts are not alive to enjoy it with them. It will, however, be some compensation to live in a street called after their son because he was a civic hero."

PRESIDENT GARFIELD.

The Impression of an Interviewer Who Could Not Get an Interview But Had a Pleasant Talk.

I mentioned in form concise as possible the prevalent curiosity to know something about his views as to the policy the new administration should follow, and about Cabinet probabilities. I flatter myself the nerve required to put this excited his admiration, for he smiled again and blew a gust of smoke high over his head.

"That is something," he said, "we will all know more about three months from now. I have made up my mind to be for three months a first class listener."

He added that he had made it a rule not to be "interviewed;" and before I left the house he placed me under a tacit pledge not to write a line in that form. The talk drifted along for the better part of an hour; and out of it I feel myself at liberty to extract so much of essence or inference as will convey some foretaste of the next four years.

General Garfield seems, to begin with, a broad-minded man, devoid of any petty feelings of like or dislike. He has no piques to continue, nor any prejudices to follow. He is ready to listen to suggestions from all parts of the country, and will be glad to get them. No man was ever elected to the presidency with less of personal effort in his own behalf. He told me, when I called upon him in September last, that the nomination having fallen to him without his seeking, he troubled himself personally little about the result, farther than that he desired his party to win. His present unworn appearance and buoyant health tell plainly enough how lightly the campaign has lain upon his mind. He had a pleasant career before him in the senate, his tastes lay in the direction of legislative work; had he never been nominated, his position and his duties, though less high and consequential than they will be now, would have been much more to his personal liking. Feeling under the circumstances of the case less bound to any faction than to the whole country, he will be much more free to follow his conscience and his judgment for the good of the whole than though he had, through a course of intriguing before the convention, been tied to any set of men whose labors might have secured his success. The issues of the campaign impose upon him a subservience to the will of the majority in certain leading questions; but in none is he an extremist. It is not to be expected that he will temporize, for example, with the south, but so far as his influence [illegible] the government may go, that part of the [illegible] to be fairly treated [illegible].

Webster and Christianity

Rev. Dr. S. K. [illegible], who was Daniel Webster's pastor in Boston for more than thirty [illegible] in which he referred to his visit to Mr. Webster [illegible] his son, [illegible] Webster, was buried [illegible] [illegible] silent pressure of hands. [illegible] I did not feel that it was for me to speak first in his presence, and he did not [illegible] not as expecting or demanding [illegible] but as an expression of sympathy [illegible] seemed to me to become very oppressive, though I suppose it did not last [illegible] and said: "I [illegible] that [illegible] on his tomb [illegible] at Marshfield, where I hope to be [illegible] name and the dates of his birth and death, there might be simply [illegible] believer in the gospel of Christ, the best thing that can be said of any man." He then went on, I, of course, having only a very secondary part in the conversation, to speak of the strength and [illegible] which his Christian faith afforded him, and then of Christ's wonderful life, character and instructions as a [illegible] and inspiration to any one who would [illegible] this life as to be prepared for a future and higher life.

Prince of Wales Debts

[illegible] writes to the New York World that there is a decided sensation in [illegible] of London, caused by the report that Mr. Gladstone [illegible] been requested by the queen to [illegible] to parliament [illegible] session for a grant of [illegible] to help the Prince of Wales to pay off such of his debts as are considered pressing, and for an addition of £10,000 a year to his Royal Highness' allowance—£40,000 a year irrespective of the net revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall (which amounts to nearly £70,000 a year) and of the Princess' £10,000. It is said that Mr. Gladstone declined respectfully but firmly to comply with the request, alleging that if any such grant or increased allowance were required it should be made by the queen herself—not asked from the public purse. The story, if it be true, and it seems to be very generally believed, cannot fail to increase Mr. Gladstone's popularity, for,—without any disrespect to the Prince of Wales, the majority of the nation would certainly hold that this is no time for increasing his or any allowance, especially in view of the great private fortune possessed by the queen, and of the further fact that if the Prince of Wales has incurred debts it is because the heir apparent has been compelled to discharge duties and assume expenses that might have been avoided by a prudent prince.

Sweet Sleep.

There is no fact more clearly established in the physiology of man than this, that the brain expends its energies and itself during the hours of wakefulness and that these are recuperated during sleep; if the recuperation does not equal the expenditure the brain withers; this is insanity. Thus it is that in early English history persons who were condemned to death by being prevented from sleeping always died raving maniacs; thus it is also that those who are starved to death become insane; the brain is not nourished and they cannot sleep. The practical inferences are three:

First. Those who think most, who do most brain work, require most sleep.

Second. That time "saved" from necessary sleep is infallibly destructive to mind, body and estate.

Third. Give yourself, your children, your servants, give all who are under you the fullest amount of sleep they will take by compelling them to go to bed at some regular, early hour, and to rise in the morning the moment they awake of themselves, and within a fortnight nature, with almost the regularity of the rising sun, will unloose the bonds of sleep the moment enough repose has been secured for the wants of the system. It is the only safe and sufficient rule, and as to the question how much sleep anyone requires, each must be a rule for himself; great nature will never fail to write it out to the observer, under the regulations just given. 21 NUMBERS OF SCRIBNER'S FOR $5.

The richly illustrated November number of Scribner's Monthly, the Decennial Issue, appears in a new cover, and begins the twenty-first volume. The increasing popularity of the magazine is strongly evidenced by recent sales. A year ago the monthly circulation was about 90,000 copies; during the past nine months it has averaged 115,000, while the first edition of the November issue is 125,000.

The first part of the now famous serial by Eugene Schuyler, "The Life of Peter the Great," was finished in October. With November begins Part II., "Peter the Great as Ruler and Reformer," which will be an advance, in point of popular interest and wealth of illustration, upon the part already published. To enable readers to secure Part I., the publishers make the following special offers to new subscribers after October 20th, who begin with the November number.

(1.) New subscribers may obtain, for $5.00 Scribner's Monthly for the coming year, and the previous nine numbers, February to October, 1880, which include Part I. of "Peter the Great," Mrs. Burnett's "Louisiana," etc. In accepting this offer, twenty one numbers will be had for $5.00.

(2.) They may obtain the previous twelve numbers of Scribner's, elegantly bound in olive green cloth (two volumes), containing Part I. of Peter the great, all of Cable's novel, "The Grandissimes," with the numbers named above, and a year's subscription, for $7.50. (Regular price, $10.00.)

All book sellers or news dealers will take subscriptions and supply the numbers and volumes mentioned in the above special offers, without extra charge for postage or express; or the publishers, Scribner & Co., 743 Broadway, New York, may be addressed direct. The regular price of Scribner's is $4.00 a year, 35 cents a number.

Our information concerning the marriage of Mr Peter Mariani was incorrect The name of the alleged bride was given to a reporter of the GAZETTE by a gentleman who from this fact was supposed to know her Mr Mariani is not married but keeps just as fine a stock of candies and fruits as if he were

It is reported that the late and unexpected storm has confined large numbers of cattle in the mountains the snow being too deep for them to pass through in order to get out Many owners of cattle are now [illegible] breaking trails for the purpose of driving their stock out It is said that quite a number of cattle are wandering in the mountains between here and the Peak.

Mr W J Hunt of the firm of Aiken & Hunt has organized a first class orchestra which can furnish the best of music We have had the pleasure of hearing this orchestra perform and we were much pleased with their execution Mr Hunt the [illegible] a musician of much more than ordinary ability In addition to being a pianist and organist he can perform [illegible] other instruments and has a [illegible] theoretical knowledge [illegible] of his original compositions [illegible] of superior excellence The orchestra under his direction will be a credit to [illegible] Mr Hunt can be addressed [illegible] the services of an orchestra [illegible] single musician

Serious Times for Cattle

Colonel Kitteridge of Four Mile was [illegible] yesterday and informed us that a [illegible] old fashioned snow storm had fallen in the park He said the snow was about ten inches deep and had staid on the ground and looked as though it was going to stay

The cattle in the park when not fed are [illegible] the colonel says that the [illegible] who have feed for their stock [illegible] rather than the rule [illegible] very discouraging just now [illegible] of cattle seem likely to suffer severe loss during this unprecedented [illegible] snowy weather

Colonel Kitteridge said that so far as he [illegible] he had a good supply of [illegible] hand for his stock and that he [illegible] be able to bring the animals through the winter in good condition [illegible] the snow melts speedily there will [illegible] great loss among the cattle

CATCHING A ROBBER

Clever Detective Work in this City

About the 9th of the present month there was a mysterious loss of valuable papers and quite a large sum of money in one of the departments of the Denver and Rio Grande railroad office on Huerfano street The facts in the case were kept quiet and publication was postponed lest the ends of justice might be defeated by giving the perpetrators of the crime warning.

Word was sent to the Rocky Mountain Detective Association, and a man was detailed to visit the Springs and work up the case The detective, Mr. H. Philbrook, came to town over a week ago and set quietly about his work His identity was not suspected by any but those in the secret, and he was thus enabled to work with less embarrassment Yesterday he brought his labors to a successful issue and caused the arrest of one Charles Chapman, a colored man, upon the charge of committing the robbery The crime is one of grand larceny, as in addition to the papers taken, which represented over $700 though not negotiable, there were over $110 in currency

Detective Philbrook has done a good bit of work in catching the man who was guilty of the robbery in question, and deserves credit for his perseverance and shrewdness

Reducing Railroad Rates

It is now announced that the Denver & Rio Grande road will make quite a reduction in passenger rates on and after the first of December The rate of fare between Denver and Pueblo and all immediate stations will be six cents per mile, this will make the price of tickets from this city to Denver $4 55 instead of $6 40 the price now required

There will also be a marked decrease in rate of fare over the entire road and its extensions We are informed that it will be necessary for all passengers to procure their tickets before stepping on the train otherwise the reduction will not be allowed This change will undoubtedly be appreciated by the residents of Colorado Springs as there is a large amount of local travel between here and Denver

Personal

Prof J H Fletcher, left on the afternoon express yesterday for Denver where he will spend a few days

Messrs A B Silsbee and Thomas Silsbee prominent merchants of Boston Mass are sojourning in the city for a few days

Mr J W Crawford, more generally known as Captain Jack, passed through the city yesterday in charge of a company of prospectors on their way to New Mexico Captain Jack has the reputation of being one of the oldest and most experienced miners in Colorado

Major Kay C La[illegible] of the second assistant post master general's office is confined to his bed at the Springs hotel from injuries sustained by a violent fall He stopped over here while on his way to New Mexico where he was going on business for the post office department His injuries are of painful but not serious nature and he expects to be able to continue his journey in a few days

Colorado as a rule is down on tender feet and ever willing to stand by the pioneer. But in making the classification everything depends on the place of residence In Denver a man is not a pioneer if he came to Colorado later than [illegible] while in Silver Cliff they are organizing a first settler's association no member of which was a resident of the place before 1878

LEADVILLE

The Fryer Hill Fire and [illegible] Control Prosperity of the Matchless New [illegible] in the Hibernia

LEADVILLE November [illegible] It now seems probable that the Fryer Hill fire will soon be entirely under control Immense quantities of steam have been forced into the burning stopes with apparently deadening effect and the managers of the Little Pittsburg and Chrysolite seem greatly elated over it The [illegible] workings of the Chrysolite have been freed from gas by means of Flowers' [illegible] the [illegible] of work practicable [illegible] that portion of the mine [illegible] shipments to the extent of nearly fifty tons per day will immediately be resumed The Little Chief has also been freed from gas A change in the management has already been made The outlook altogether is much brighter than seemed possible a week ago

Governor Tabor's Matchless is looking up Not that any new discovery has been made but that a rich body of chlorides forming the head of the great ore chute of the Robert E Lee and Hibernia has been made available by means of a new shaft near the south end of the claim and west of the Lee shaft house The Hibernia workings had fully uncovered the body along the line and it was only necessary for the Matchless to take out its little bonanza without the formality of a new discovery The Matchless has for several months been producing regularly from its workings several hundred feet to the north of the new shaft, but separated from the Lee ore chute by an immense mass of iron which has no been thoroughly prospected Neither the Lee, the Matchless nor the Hibernia has been thoroughly prospected as yet The great Lee chloride chute heads, as before stated, in the Matchless and passes with a gradual descent in a north easterly course through a projecting triangle of the Hibernia and entirely across the Lee, with almost a certainty of extending into the Shiver, on the east The Lee and Hibernia have a large extent of territory, but slightly prospected on the the south of this body The Hibernia territory lies mainly in that direction, crossing the Little Stray Horse Gulch and running well over toward Main Stray Horse From the Surprise shaft of the Hibernia, south of Little Stray Horse, recent discoveries of rich chlorides have been made, but the magnitude of the deposits can only be determined by more extended development The discovery is of importance in demonstrating the existence of ore similar to that of the Lee chute on the south side of the gulch where no discoveries have hitherto been made

What Judge Simmons of Gunnison Has to Say of the Case

We find the following concerning the case of Berry and Cline in the News of yesterday "Judge Simmons, of Gunnison county who was employed by the people of Gunnison to prosecute Cline for alleged complicity in the murder of young Jackson, is among the late arrivals at Charpiots The judge in conversation with a News reporter last night said that more false statements had been made regarding the recent difficulty on the reservation than time itself could ever efface and hinted that a certain gentleman—a representative of a Denver morning paper—would not be safe in Gunnison county, because of the exaggerated dispatches he had sent to his paper Judge Simmons in the course of the conversation said that on the morning of Jackson's departure for Gunnison under escort some queer things happened He says that on that morning Meacham was observed to step into Cline's house arm in arm with Shavano

"Now Berry and Cline were in the house at the time and it was said that the trio Berry Meacham and Cline had about ten minutes conference with Shavano that when the conference was ended Cline suggested the idea of taking Jackson to Gunnison in the manner followed that the Indians who had been surrounding the place went away in a direction intended to convey the idea that they were all satisfied and that they made a demonstration instead, and captured the prisoner as is already known The affair smacked strongly of conspiracy to all appearances He says Cline had frequently threatened after Jackson was accused of killing the Indian to take command of the [illegible] himself and 'clean out every white son of a — — in the neighborhood Cline is now out on bail Judge Simmons has been requested to assist in the prosecution but has declined

OUT WEST

The Lake City Register says that a million of hard cash from Chicago alone will be invested in San Juan mining property next year

Ed West of Trinidad went into the sheep business five years ago with a capital of $5,000 This year he sold his season's wool-clip for $12 000

The editor of the Lake City Register is a democrat hence when he says What the San Juan country most needs at this critical time is a generous reduction of the tariff for revenue only on fresh oysters,' he means it
